THEATRE

Stories Brought to Life. Conversations Opened.

Original stories rooted in the world around us.

Drawn from shared experiences, personal reflections and familiar situations, USP's productions bring stories to the stage that audiences can recognise, enjoy and sometimes see differently.

CULTURE IN EVERYDAY LIFE

The Worlds We Live In.

Culture is not only found in architecture, craft, festivals, and traditions. It also lives in family relationships, social conventions, rituals, expectations, and the way people relate to one another.

Theatre allows USP to explore this less tangible side of culture—bringing familiar experiences and situations to the stage through storytelling, humour and performance.

Some stories entertain. Others make us question. The most memorable can do both.

THEATRE OVER TIME

More Than a Decade of Original Work.

For more than a decade, USP has developed and staged original theatre across a range of subjects, settings, and characters.

Each production has its own story, tone, and perspective. Together, they reflect an ongoing interest in the cultural and social worlds around us.

CURRENT PRODUCTION

The Prayer Meeting Edit

A Familiar Setting. A Contemporary Conversation.

The Prayer Meeting Edit is an original comedy set around a chautha—a familiar cultural gathering for prayer and remembrance.

As family and friends come together, relationships, expectations and social conventions begin to surface. What should be solemn becomes revealing, uncomfortable and unexpectedly funny.

Beneath the humour lies a contemporary question: how involved are women in the financial decisions that shape their own lives?

Through recognisable characters and situations, the play brings that question into view, opening conversations about money, independence, and women's involvement in decisions affecting their lives.

Stories That Travel Beyond the Stage.

The ambition is to continue developing original theatre that is engaging, culturally rooted, and relevant to contemporary life.

As the work grows, USP hopes to reach wider audiences and create space for different stories and perspectives, while remaining connected to the experiences and cultural contexts from which they emerge.

The performance ends. What it opens up can continue.
